

Gosia Kryk Profile

'I feel like an explorer, an interpreter of my own intricate imagination'

Gosia's paintings are rich in all aspects, colour, form, and texture. They look very simple from a distance but as you approach them you realise how complex they are, there is a huge amount of work in these paintings and they demand more than a quick glance.....they deserve ownership.

In August 2013, Hillside Bistro was very proud to be showing the work of Gosia Kryk, an established Polish artist living in London.

Gosia says she doesn't plan her paintings; instead she sees each one as a separate journey to find something special from 'the deep unknown'. In her own words she says:

'I feel like an explorer, an interpreter of my own intricate imagination. Personally I believe the process of oil painting is like designing a new landscape. For me it's about conjuring a misty picture into existence.'

Gosia studied at State Art Secondary School in Naleczow and graduated at Gdansk Academy of Fine Art. Her work has been exhibited widely in London including Cork Street, a solo show at Knapp Gallery, Regent Street and more recently at Fulham Palace Art Fair.
